A TRAVEL SHOW FOR YOUNG ADULTS

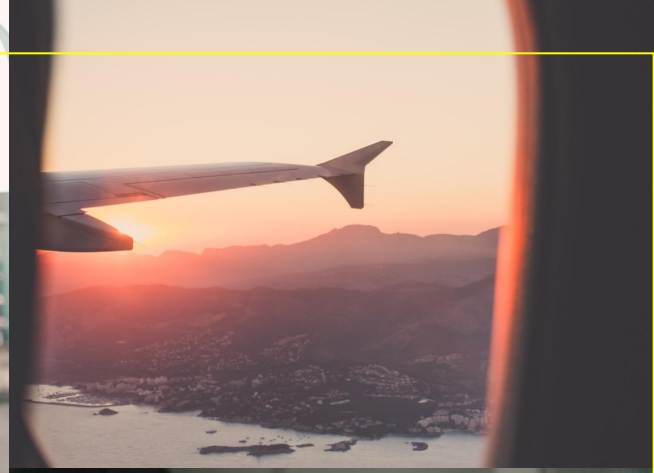

How many of us actually live in the place that our family is originally from?

How many of us wonder what it would be like to feel more connected to that place?

How many of us wish we could give that experience to our kids...

HOME

is a wish-fulfillment travel show for the whole family to watch together, where American young adults (ages 10-15) travel to the homeland their parents left behind, meet "new" family for the first time, and have the trip of a lifetime.

They meet their extended family-- a loving grandma, a cool aunt or uncle, a cousin the same age who becomes a best friend.

They learn the culture and see the sights-- exploring the city, the traditions and rituals, the nature and wildlife through the eyes of the locals.

They connect with their past-- hearing stories of their parents' childhood and visiting the places their parents played and went to school.

They do it on their own-- without their parents, outside of their comfort zone. And we capture every heart-warming, humorous, and life-changing detail on camera.

With the entire world as our canvas,
we'll never run out of stories:

➔ A CUBAN TEEN whose parents fled in the boatlift visits Havana, learns salsa from her grandma and discovers her uncle is a famous local musician.

➔ THE SON OF A NIGERIAN DIPLOMAT visits Lagos, a thriving hub of African culture, and makes lasting friendships with cousins they've never met.

➔ THE DAUGHTER OF MEXICAN IMMIGRANTS experiences the magic of the Oaxaca mountains and learns her indigenous language.

➔ A FRENCH TEEN falls in love with Paris and her family's century-old vineyard.

SPIN-OFFS:

This show has legs beyond just multiple seasons. There's the possibility of a "Nailed-It" style cookbook featuring family recipes from across the globe. Or country-specific travel guidebooks featuring tips and recommendations from our young travelers. There's educational kits to be created for teachers focusing a lesson plan on a specific episode.

Every episode is filled with love, laughter, warmth, and new connections.

The themes couldn't be more universal.

And the timing couldn't be better, after life in a global shutdown, for families to reconnect and for audiences to rediscover the world all over again.
